The agent must be at least 18 years old, have a pre-existing relationship with you and cannot be a candidate. The agent can pick up your ballot starting 7 days before the election and up until 2pm on election day, November 8. Redistricting: Why and How

This year you may find that your voting district and polling place have changed. What's happened?

In 2022 many people experienced this change in their voting area. This process, redistricting, happens every ten years as states, counties, and cities across the country adjust their political boundaries to fit new census numbers. Because the population of Minnesota has changed, the size and boundaries of congressional, state, and local districts change so that each has approximately the same number of people. That way the value of each vote is equal.

In Minnesota the process starts with the legislature and governor. The political parties redraw maps for our eight congressional, state legislature, and metropolitan council districts. It can be tempting for parties to try to design these areas for their own particular advantage, sometimes resulting in weird shapes and unusual inclusions. This is called gerrymandering.

Our system in Minnesota is set up to avoid gerrymandering. Here, when the parties and the governor don't agree, as has happened for all of the past 50 years, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court appoints a redistricting panel to draw new boundaries. The panel completed its work in February, 2022.

With congressional and state legislative boundaries determined, local redistricting begins. Cities, county boards, and school districts set their own local boundaries. In Minneapolis our Charter Commission, with the help of an advisory group and input from the community, draws the maps for Park Board districts and the city's wards and precincts.

Groups charged with adjusting voting districts are subject to specific rules, such as creating districts that are convenient for voting and are approximately equal in population. They also are charged with making sure that voters who belong to communities of color or Native American tribes are able to fairly elect their representatives.

When local maps are completed and approved by the Minneapolis City Council and the Park Board, notices of updated polling places are sent to all registered voters. Before the primary election, we know if our district and precinct have changed, and we are notified as to where we can vote. The process itself, with all of its approvals and bipartisan committees, ensures that our vote is equal to a vote in any other part of the state. It's good to know that each person has as much clout as every other voter.

Public Safety Is On the Ballot Again This Year

This November, you won’t see an obvious question on the ballot like last year’s City Question #2. But almost every federal, state and local public office in the General Election affects policing and public safety in Minneapolis. The Mayor and Police Chief have direct authority over the Minneapolis Police Department (MPD), but those powers are limited by state and federal policies.

When you vote, think about how some of these elected offices impact equity in public safety and policing in Minneapolis:

- Congress protects public employees with “qualified immunity”.
- The Governor and State Legislature set the parameters for police union contracts.
- The County Attorney decides which crimes are prosecuted.
- The Sheriff serves warrants, subpoenas and orders of protection.
- The School Board oversees safety personnel and systems on school property.
- Judges oversee criminal trials and civil lawsuits.

OUR MISSION

We are a non-partisan political organization that encourages informed and active participation in all levels of government, works to increase understanding of major policy issues, and influences public policy through education and advocacy.

Who Votes, Who Doesn't, and Why

Recent Supreme Court rulings have exposed the reality that government representatives often don't act in accordance with the will of the people. Polls indicate, for example, that the majority of Americans support access to abortion, yet the highest court in the land rescinded that right. Why? It's all about voting – who votes and who doesn't.

Among the pool of eligible voters in the U.S., 1 out of 3 did NOT vote in the 2020 Presidential election. The top three reasons that these 77 million Americans did not vote were 1) lack of interest in politics 2) they didn't like the candidates and 3) they didn't think their votes would matter. And there are many logistical barriers (childcare, transportation, disability) which can make voting challenging, if not impossible.

In Minnesota, every vote for regional and state-wide office, counts equally. Registering to vote is easy with mail-in, online, and same-day registration options. Elections are won and lost by very slim margins. If every Minnesotan exercised their right to vote, the values and priorities of elected officials might better reflect those of the people they represent.

We've Cast Our Ballots; Then What?

When voting at the polls ends at 8 pm on election night, the election judges at each of Minneapolis' 137 precincts bring materials to the city clerk staff at two receiving sites. There, election judges check and re-check that the precinct judges have signed off on every item returned - envelopes containing election day registrations, number of spoiled ballots, and the ballots themselves. Also included are tapes containing numerical results and a memory stick which registers the number of votes in each category. Absentee ballots are entered into a high-speed tabulator starting seven days before election day.

Memory sticks from all the machines are sent to Hennepin County where certified staff handle the ballot information on them and submit unofficial vote totals to the Secretary of State's office. These unofficial results are posted on election night or shortly thereafter by the State and also on the Minneapolis elections website. Results are official only after they are approved by a canvassing board in the weeks following an election.

Our ballots, along with other materials collected from the precincts, are organized by ward and precinct and locked safely in a vault at Minneapolis elections headquarters. Should there be a question about voting results, or if a vote is so close that Minnesota law demands a recount, the paper ballots provide a necessary backup. The memory sticks are securely stored at Hennepin County Elections offices.
